

PRESIDENT TALKS TO THE VETERANS

McKINLEY AT A G. A. R. BANQUET IN BUFFALO.

Eloquent Response to Toast—Col. Mack Continues Hard at Work to Land the Office of Commander-in-Chief—San Francisco in the Fight for the Next Convention.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25.—President McKinley was Tuesday night the guest of Columbia post of Chicago at a banquet attended by all the distinguished officers of the Grand Army of the Republic.

When the presidential party arrived in the city at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the route from the station to the hotel was lined with 100,000 people. The president and Mrs. McKinley, Commander in Chief Clarkson and Augustus F. Scheu of Buffalo rode in a carriage behind twenty-five mounted policemen to the Niagara hotel. Here the crowd was so persistent that the president was obliged to make a speech, as he had to do at Utica and Syracuse on his way west.

Four hundred banqueters assembled in the Ellicott club. Commander McConnell of Columbia post acted as toastmaster. On his right sat the president and on his left Gen. Clarkson. Others at this table were Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, Gen. Russell A. Alger, ex-Postmaster-General Wilson S. Bissell, Gov. Black and Gov. Pinckney of Michigan.

Gov. Black made the address of welcome to the Grand Army of the Republic on behalf of the state, and he was followed by Mayor Jewett, who spoke for Buffalo. Then the president spoke. His theme was "The Nation and its Defenders."

President McKinley responded to his toast as follows:

"I wish I might frame fitting words to make suitable response to the more than gracious welcome which you have accorded me here tonight. To me, I see by the program, has been assigned the toast, 'The Country and its Defenders." My fellow-citizens, blessed is that country whose defenders are patriots; blessed is that country whose soldiers fight for it and are willing to give the best they have—the best that any man has—their own lives, to preserve it because they love it.

"Such an army the United States has always commanded in every crisis of her history. From the war of the revolution to the late civil war the men followed that flag in battle, because they loved that flag and believed in what it represented. That was the stuff of which the volunteer army of '61 was made. And so more than 2,000,000 brave men thus responded and made up an army grander than any army that ever shook the earth with its tread and engaged in a holier cause than ever engaged soldiers before. What defenders, my countrymen, have we now? We have the remnant of this old, magnificent, matchless army of which I have been speaking, and then as allies in any future war we have the brave men who fought against us on southern battlefields. The army of Grant and the army of Lee are together. They are one now in faith, in hope, in fraternity, in purpose and in an invincible patriotism. And therefore the country is in no danger. In justice strong, in peace secure and in devotion to the flag, all one."

The president's allusion to the south and its unity with the north was received with vociferous applause, the audience standing upon their seats to cheer, and the conclusion of the toast Gov. Black led the applause.

Natigal Commander Clarkson responded to the toast "The Grand Army," and in a few words said that the vast army of young men that marched to the music of the drum were the prime flower of the youth of the land. He, too, paid a tribute to the south and the southern army.

Secretary of War Alger spoke to the toast, "The Army of the United States." He thought the army should be strengthened somewhat. He complimented the national guard and said that it would prove a great bulwark of the national in time of need.

C. Porter Johnson of Chicago, responded to the toast, "The Volunteer." Henry Estabrook spoke to the toast, "The General." Charles W. Anderson, a colored orator, spoke of the colored troops, and John S. Wise spoke upon "Under One Flag." Mr. Wise, who was a confederate officer, was received with much enthusiasm.

Archbishop Ireland was the last general toast orator, and was received with vociferous applause. From the banquet the president went to a campfire, at which he spoke.

While every one else was talking of McKinley's visit, Col. Mack of Sandusky was working like a beaver to maintain his supremacy in the race for the commandership. He met with a good measure of success. The attitude of Col. James A. Sexton of Chicago was equivalent to a withdrawal, so that Col. Mack has Illinois, most of Indiana, New York, Ohio and more than half of the western states. He now claims a hundred majority on the first ballot.

Gen. Innis of Massachusetts tried to get a solid delegation from New England for himself, and did get some accessions from those who came here for John C. Linehan of New Hampshire, who was the second choice at the St. Paul encampment, when Gen. Clarkson won out.

The unseen influences which are at work for Col. Mack are very formidable in Grand Army of the Republic politics, as well as in republican politics, and it now looks as if the Cincinnati movement could not defeat the Sandusky man. While Col. Mack has managed to get strong personal friends elected on the Ohio delegation where the votes are to be cast for commander, there are many here from Ohio who much prefer that Cincinnati should get the encampment.

San Francisco started in with renewed vigor for the encampment and offers to guarantee a $100,000 fund, but the Cincinnati movement is so well established that the onslaught had little effect. In short, it seems impossible to beat either Cincinnati or Mack, and so the precedents of the Grand Army are threatened.

Rear Admiral Sears called the twelfth annual convention of the National Association of Naval Veterans to order in the afternoon. Three hundred delegates were in attendance. Daniel F. Kelly of Philadelphia was elected rear admiral for the ensuing year over Will M. Atkins by a vote of 94 to 13.

The National Association of ex-Prisoners of War met, with Commander Charles F. Sheriff of Pittsburgh in the chair. The report of the adjutant general showed 63 local associations, with a membership of 1,932, and 702 individual members, a total membership of 2,204. There was a substantial cash balance in the treasury.

Several speakers advocated the passage of the ex-prisoners relief bill to be presented to congress. Charles M. Eneriff, Pittsburgh, was elected commander.

The Loyal Home Workers met with 100 delegates, representing fifteen states present. The annual reports showed that the order was making steady progress, its membership now exceeding 10,000.

At the request of the citizens of Buffalo, President McKinley has consented to ride at the head of the line in the G. A. R. parade as far as the reviewing stand, where he will take the seat previously assigned to him and review the veterans as they pass by.

Severe Storm in New York. New York, Aug. 25.—After forty days, during which rain fell with provoking regularity, New York and vicinity was Tuesday morning treated to a cloud-burst. The city was flooded in many sections. Along the river front particularly the tremendous rainfall played great havoc. Streets were inundated and basements were filled with water to a depth of seven feet. Much damage was done throughout the state.

Outsider Wins the Futurity. New York, Aug. 25.—The unexpected happened at Sheephead Bay Tuesday and the filly L'Alouette of the Thompson string won the Futurity, with something to spare. Her backers were happy, for although her victory was a surprise, she was coupled in the betting with her stable mates, Gibraltar and The Huguenot, and as the stable was the favorite for the race the ring suffered.

Glassmakers Form a Trust. Chicago, Aug. 25.—Initial steps were taken at the meeting of the glass manufacturers yesterday to organize the industry into a trust, which will be known as the American Window Glass association. The result expected will be the advancement of the workmen's wages 20 per cent and a corresponding increase in the price of the product.

New York, Aug. 25.—Bishop J. M. Thoburn, chairman of the interdenominational missionary relief committee, cables from Bombay "The famine is steadily abating."

SUSPECTS' NAMES ARE GIVEN OUT

PEOPLE KNOW THE MEN WHOM STRUBLE ACCUSED.

No Arrests Have Been Made—Excitement at Mount Pleasant and Shepherd Over the Assassination Continues to Increase—Opinion as to Why the Crime Was Committed.

Shepherd, Mich., Aug. 25.—The three men whom Bank Cashier Struble, just before his death, is said to have named as his assailants are John Ryan and a man named Wheaton from Mount Pleasant and William Brown of Ann Arbor. John Ryan is the father of John F. Ryan, the president of the Farmers' bank of Shepherd and a heavy stockholder in the bank. Brown is also said to own considerable stock in the Farmers' bank. Wheaton is not very well known in Mount Pleasant. Brown and Wheaton, however, claim they can prove alibis. John Ryan is getting fearful for his personal safety. He maintains silence when asked as to any possible connection he may have had with the bank robbery. In the dying confession Struble is said to have declared that Brown and Wheaton wore masks, while Ryan had nothing to conceal his features. Prosecutor McNamara has appointed six special policemen, who will search every house, store, stable, barn and other buildings in Shepherd to try to find some trace of the missing bank books. It is the theory now that the robbers concealed these books in some place within the town limits so as to ward off suspicion.

At first it was given out that the robbers succeeded in getting only $2,000. Now, however, the citizens of Shepherd say that at least $6,000 was secured and probably as much as $12,000. Some place the figure as high as $15,000.

The excitement at Mount Pleasant is greater than at this place, and crowds of people traversed the streets all night. One man came in from Clare, a distance of fifteen miles, and stated that a crowd of 300 men were waiting for a signal only, when they would march in force to Mount Pleasant and demand that something be done.

Banking Commissioner's Opinion.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 25.—In speaking of the Shepherd tragedy, Banking Commissioner Just expressed the opinion that the crime was committed by depositors of the defunct People's bank of Mount Pleasant, who shared the belief that President Ryan of the Shepherd bank had secured a large sum of money from the Mount Pleasant institution. These depositors, according to the commissioner's theory, argued that there was money in the Shepherd bank which belonged to them, and they sought to get it by force. He does not think the killing of Struble was premeditated, but was the outcome of the struggle for the possession of the cash.

Think Detectives Could Do Nothing.

Mount Pleasant, Mich., Aug. 25.—John F. Ryan has proposed that a public meeting be held at Shepherd to arrange for employing detectives to ferret out the murderer of Cashier Struble. No action has yet been taken in this direction. No reward has been offered, because of the conviction that the guilty persons are not strangers, and that detectives cannot learn much more than is known at present.

Murdered Bank Cashier Buried.

Shepherd, Mich., Aug. 26.—Elmer E. Struble, who was murdered Saturday, was buried Tuesday. People from all parts of the county attended the funeral, notwithstanding the hard rain at intervals. Many from Mount Pleasant drove over, and nearly every member of the Maccabees and Loyal Guards, of which orders deceased was a prominent member, attended in a body.

Proclamation by Gov. Tanner.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25.—Gov. Tanner has published his proclamation designating Sept. 6 as Labor day, and takes occasion to express himself at length on the relation of capital and labor. The proclamation concludes: "I enjoin upon the citizens of this great commonwealth to observe Labor day this year of all years in the spirit and for the purposes for which it was instituted; and, laying aside all other business, to devote the day to patriotic discussion of questions than which none of greater moment and more pregnant with possibilities of weal or woe have ever presented themselves for the consideration of the people of these United States."

Bryan Heard by 'Phone.

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 25.—William Jennings Bryan is an idol in the eyes of a vast number of Pennington county men and women, who congregated in Rapid City courtyard this afternoon to hear him deliver an address on "Bimetallism." The Black Hills Telephone company had placed a phonographic attachment in front of the speaker, and his words were telephoned over the entire circuit of the hills.

New Strike in Trinity.

Carrville, Cal., Aug. 25.—Three new gold strikes have been made in this vicinity. While some of the rock goes very high, the average value is estimated at $15. The latest reports from prospecting centers are encouraging, and indicate that the excitement has but really commenced.

BESSEMER MEN OUT FOR $1.65 A DAY

STRIKE OF 375 AT THE PALMS MINE.

Fred Schlesinger's Forces Demand Larger Pay and the Officials of the Company Are Out From Milwaukee Looking Over the Ground—Public Backs Strikers.

Bessemer, Aug. 25.—[Special]—The employees of the Palms mines, operated by Fred Schlesinger, to the number of 375 men have struck for an increase in wages. Officials are here from Milwaukee trying to make a settlement. The strikers are mostly Cornishmen and they demand $1.65 per day. Public sympathy is with the men.

COAL STRIKE IS NOT SETTLED

Conference At Pittsburgh Proves a Failure—Both Sides Abstain.

Pittsburg, Aug. 25.—[Special]—Federal coal mine was fired last night by alleged strikers. The flames were subdued. Strikers claim it is a conspiracy to hurt them.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 25.—The fourth and final conference between the committee representing the coal operators of the Pittsburg district, and the national and district representatives of the miners' organization failed to agree and adjourned without having named a date for another meeting.

The following propositions were made by the operators and rejected by the miners:

To start the mines at 54 cents a ton and let the award of the arbitration apply to all the coals mined from the time of starting. To start the mines at 61½ cents a ton, with other conditions as in the first proposition. To start without naming a price and require the board of arbitrators to report within thirty days, their award to apply to all the coal mined. To proceed to an arbitration without starting the mines, and to require that the arbitrators shall make an award within ten days or thirty days, as the miners might desire.

The following propositions were offered by the miners and refused by the operators:

To start the mines at 69 cents, the miners to accept a reduction as soon as the arbitrators can act, if they decree that the price is too high. To issue a call for a conference of operators and miners' representatives of the competitive states.

The miners having refused to agree to the terms of the operators and the propositions of the operators having been rejected by the miners, President M. D. Ratcliff said there was nothing more to do. He and the other miners' officials then left the meeting.

It is stated that an incidental proposal made by President Ratcliff was that President McKinley and W. J. Bryan should be asked to act as arbitrators.

The operators issued a statement in which they claimed they had acted honorably, and the responsibility for continuing the strike would rest on the miners' officials. The committee of seven to arrange the details of breaking the strike met and will report at a general meeting of operators to-day. Camp Desolation, Sandy Creek, has been broken up. The miners' officials say they quit the ground because they have practically closed. President W. P. De Armit says they quit because their efforts to get out more men were fruitless.

LABOR'S GREATEST EFFORT.

Possible Outcome of the Conference to Be Held at St. Louis.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 25.—According to the plans of the leaders of the great labor organizations of the country the labor conference to be held in St. Louis on the 30th inst., will result in a general movement for an eight-hour day and a uniform scale of wages for men engaged in the same occupation the country over. It is said that while ostensibly the St. Louis conference is called to adopt radical measures in aid of the striking miners, it is really for the purpose of uniting the labor organizations of the country in a determined effort to bring about these two objects. Immediately after the St. Louis conference, it is said, a demand will be made for shorter hours and uniform wages. A refusal to comply with the demand will result in the most widespread suspension of the industries of the country ever known. It is expected that a general tie-up of railroads and a consequent coal famine will ensue. This will force the operators and railroads to terms and eventually result in the demands of organized labor being acceded to. It is expected that the suspension will reach every branch of industry and involve hundreds of thousands of laboring men.

INDIANA MINERS SEND AID.

Gov. Mount Declares His Sympathy for Poorly Paid Men.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 25.—Gov. Mount in an interview made the following statement:

"Miners of Indiana have been reduced below living, decent wages. We realize it, and ought, in this year of plenty, with a rising tide of prosperity, to do our utmost to bring comfort to the distressed. I have no sympathy with the criticism that these miners have not husbanded their resources. That is not humane. These people are suffering. They are the victims of a system. Operators have admitted that miners' wages are insufficient. The old scale, I say, was not a decent scale of wages. My pride and American manhood revolt against it. My sympathies are with the miners. We want none of the conditions to which the contract system reduced Pennsylvania miners. I do not believe timely aid to these Indiana miners encourages pauperism. They are not beggars. They will work if the chance is offered them."

FORT IS TAKEN.

India's Outposts on Afghan Frontier Captured by the Afridis.

Bombay, Aug. 25.—Up to a late hour Tuesday night reliable news from the frontier had not been received. Reports from Peshawur indicate that there has been severe fighting in Khyber Pass and that the garrison of Fort Ali-Musjid, a few miles west of Jamrud, is stubbornly resisting overwhelming odds. An unconfirmed report says that the garrison made a sortie, in which they lost 300 killed, after which they abandoned the fort and started for Lowrag.

The troops at Quetta have been warned to hold themselves in readiness for hostilities at the shortest notice.

Later details of the capture of Fort Maude by the insurgents' tribesmen show that the garrison of that place retired at 10:30 p. m. Monday, and that the fort was burned half an hour later. The garrison reached Colonel Westmacott's relief column coming from Kohat at 11:30 p. m.

At the same time that Fort Maude was abandoned the Khyber rifles garrisoned Fort Jewangera were compelled to abandon that place. The area of active fighting is enlarging rapidly.

Big Storm in Indiana.

Anderson, Ind., Aug. 25.—The worst storm of the season swept over this county Tuesday afternoon and night. In the north part of the county wind did great damage. In the oil fields, derricks were scattered over all of the surrounding country and several oil tanks belonging to the Stillwells were blown down and broken. In this district the storm was so blinding that Mrs. John Davis walked in front of a train and was instantly killed. She could not see before her.

SHE DIED FOR LOVE: ACID HER DRAUGHT

KITTIE BABLER, OF MONTICELLO SUICIDES.

Disappointment in Love Led Her to To End Her Life—Found by Friends in Great Agony—Medical Came Aid Too Late to Be Effective.

Monticello, Aug. 25.—[Special]—Miss Kittie Babler, a young woman here, took a dose of carbolic acid last evening and died shortly after. She had disappointment in a love affair and this led to her suicide. She was not seen to drink the poison but was found a few moments later in great agony. Medical aid could not be had in time to be effective.

Pleasure Party Missing.

Superior, Wis., Aug. 25.—A party of eight pleasure seekers left this city Friday in a small sailboat for a cruise along the south shore. They intended to return Sunday, but have not been heard from, and it is feared the entire party has been drowned. The missing: Elsie Ball; John Burns, boatman; Mrs. D. L. Nelson; Glen Nelson, aged 10 years; Mrs. William Raycraft; Miss Raycraft, daughter of Mrs. Raycraft; J. F. Stiller; Miss Stiller. The party intended to visit the blueberry grounds about seventy miles south of this city. They took but two days' provisions, and if the boat has been driven off shore by contrary winds they will suffer greatly, provided they are still alive.

Bay View Mills to Start.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 25.—The Illinois Steel company will open the Bay View plant at once. About 1,200 men will be put to work and the plant will be operated night and day. The mills have been shut down two months. Negotiations have been carried on during the last month and the men have finally been victorious.

Law for Labor Held Illegal.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 25.—The law recently enacted by the legislature requiring the labeling of convict-made goods brought from other states to be sold in Wisconsin was on Tuesday declared unconstitutional by Judge W. H. Seaman in the United States circuit court.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA.

Supreme Court of the Order in Session at Denver.

Denver, Aug. 25.—Fully two hundred delegates, representing Foresters' courts in all portions of the country, were in attendance when the supreme court was called to order by Supreme chief ranger, Lawrence J. Smith of Lowell, Mass. The reports of the supreme chief ranger, the supreme secretary, E. M. McMurtre of St. Louis, and other executive officers were presented. These showed that during the last two years the Order of Foresters of America has made an increase of 18,746 members and eighty-six courts. There are now 1,257 courts in the United States and a total of 134,822 members.

The supreme body has paid out in insurance during the last two years $735,977 and has a balance of $22,046 in the treasury. The local lodges report having paid out for funeral funds a grand total of $104,342; for direct funeral funds, $199,826; for direct life benefits, $1,031,361; for management expenses, $609,132 and for benevolence, $96,324.

This makes an aggregate expenditure for management and beneficial funds of $2,032,983.25.

There is a balance of $931,784 in the state supreme court treasuries, an increase of $142,132 over the balance held two years ago.

Work of Train Wreckers.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 25.—Train wreckers are responsible for the death of Engineer James Brennan of this city, who was killed in a smashup on the Chicago and Alton Monday night, and injuring of Fireman Brown in the same disaster, as well as the destruction of ten cars, involving loss of $10,000. The wreck took place at 8 o'clock last evening near Mazonia, on the Coal City division of the Alton, a short distance from the main line and within five miles of Gardner station. The train was south-bound and was running at high speed in a hilly country when it encountered a tie and a rail laid across the track. It is believed by many people that the obstructions were intended to ditch "the hummer," the Alton's fast passenger train, and that the wreckers made a mistake in timing their work.

Special Mission to Cuba.

Havana, Aug. 25.—The news printed of Mr. Fishback's arrival in Havana, intrusted with a special mission from the administration, is confirmed. Mr. Fishback will accompany Consul General Lee upon a tour of inspection throughout the island. They will visit all the consulates and consular agencies of the United States in Cuba. By this means Mr. Fishback will be able to study the real situation of the island in all the six provinces, and report to the American government.

Catholic Foresters in Session.

Streator, Ill., Aug. 25.—The third annual assembly of the State Court of the Catholic Order of Foresters is in session here. State Chief Ranger Thomas McEnery, Chicago, presides over the convention. He is a candidate for re-election and has no opposition.

THEY SEE BIG MONEY IN BEET SUGAR

NOTABLE ENTERPRISE INTERESTS JANESVILLE PEOPLE

Factory Going Up in the Midst of 100,000 Acres of Land Splendidly Adapted to the Purpose—Inspired by the New Tariff—Eastern Money Is Offered.

The Janesville capital locked up in the Graves Land Co., is likely to earn big returns.

The beet sugar boom promises to do it.

E. G. Boynton, who has been actively identified with C. S. Graves and Dr. G. G. Chittenden in putting Clark county land on the market was in Chicago yesterday and announced that a company had been organized to manufacture beet sugar on a large scale. The Northwestern Beet Sugar Company is the name of the corporation. Its capital stock is $750,000. The plant will be located at Merrillan, Wis., on the main line of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, between Chicago and Minneapolis, the general offices of the company being located at La Crosse.

One hundred thousand acres of land in Jackson and Clark counties in central Wisconsin, adjacent to Merrillan, have been acquired by the company, the original holding of the Graves Land Company, forming a nucleus. The whole 100,000 acres will be put under sugar beet cultivation as fast as possible. The company itself will manage 20,000 acres, and the remainder it is the intention to colonize with persons who will work the land for sugar beet culture.

The eastern capitalist interested in this venture are some of the best known in the financial world, and those who put their money only where they feel sure of a good return. They are satisfied with the investigation made into the sugar beet producing quality of the soil in central Wisconsin and climatic conditions.

Under New Tariff's Protection.

They are also confident the impetus given by the Dingley tariff is going to make the beet sugar industry one of the great industries of the United States, and are anxious to get in it at the start. The western stockholders are mostly wealthy lumbermen, Mr. Boynton being the president and O. Holway of LaCrosse the secretary.

"I am just closing arrangements relative to the stock," said Mr. Boynton yesterday. "Our plant will have at the start a capacity of 500 tons of beets per day, and we will employ about 125 men. By next March we expect to have enough beets to keep us running to our full capacity during the entire sugar season, which will last about 150 days in every year. We already have 1,100 acres of our own land under cultivation.

"Yes, it is the Dingley tariff that has led us to start up to the full extent right away, although the company was organized last winter. In anticipation of what would be done the state legislature at its last session passed a law exempting all beet sugar property from taxation for a period of five years. The County of Jackson gave the company outright 25,000 acres of land, and we have bought 75,000 acres in Jackson and Clark counties, all within a radius of twenty-five miles of our factory.

Conditions All Favorable

"Our factory will not be the largest one in the country, there being one or two in California with a capacity of 1,200 tons. But we see the future of the industry and are willing to be pioneers on a large scale in the central west. Ample tests have been made to show the superior conditions existing for the cultivation of the beet, and now we have the tariff protection we want. The average tonnage of beets that can be produced in our section is fourteen and the percentage of sugar as to total weight is about 14.5. The price paid to farmers per ton for beets is $5.

"I expect to meet Secretary of Agriculture Wilson in Chicago on his return from the west and have a talk with him, as he believes that this country can produce from beets all the sugar it consumes. He is taking a great interest in getting the farmers to give the matter their attention, and there are several details I want his advice about. I think he is entirely right in his views on the subject. I have practically finished today the details that must be attended to before the work actually begins."

The state of Wisconsin and the state agricultural society as well as the national government, and the department of the agriculture, have showed their interest in the new industry and are doing everything possible to encourage it.

Economic Features Set Forth.

Professor W. A. Henry, director of the experiment station at Madison, in a letter on the subject to person, interested in the Merrillan project says:

The beet sugar problem is the greatest economic question now before our people. I wish that the party in power could see its way clear to take up this measure and push it as a vital one, and as one which will bring untold good to this country. It will cost some hundreds of millions of dollars to build the beet factories alone, and the capital used for this purpose will come easily enough. Now that we are about done building great railway lines there is need for some great industry to still call for capital. With the factories built each year we would save $100,000,000. It costs about $30 to raise an acre of beets, and the money spent for this labor would go to men, women and children crippled and dependent people in the poor houses, as well as farmers and their families. It would afford a vast amount of labor for persons who are now almost or quite helpless. Our sugar costs this state $15,000 a day. How much better to spend this money on working people, the railroads, coal miners, etc., than to have to gather it up 300 times a year and send it over to France, Germany and other countries to pay our sugar bill.

Result of Expert's Inquiry

Otto Zurborn of Grevenbroich, Germany, an expert on sugar production, having for a number of years been the superintendent of a factory and refinery at Elsdorf, and latterly engaged in establishing manufactories, so that he has become familiar with conditions in Austria, Russia, Sweden and California, recently visited the central Wisconsin country, and analyzed beets, soil and water supply for the Northwestern Beet Sugar Company.

In his report Mr. Zurborn said he was thoroughly convinced of the exceptional advantages for growing beets and manufacturing sugar. From beets of such quality as the average of those tested, he said, a well managed German factory would manufacture not less than 240 pounds of granulated white sugar per short ton of beets. There is no reason, he said further, why a Wisconsin company should not turn out as large a product. The increased price of labor in America, he said, would be largely, if not quite offset by the excellence and abundance of railroad and water facilities.

It is said that eastern capital is awaiting an opportunity to invest much more heavily in beet sugar factories in the west, and the organizers of the Wisconsin company think the industry in that section will soon assume enormous proportions.

CASE TALKS OF ALASKA

Charles Case Lectures on the Klondike at the Y. M. C. A. Building

The lecture by Charles T. Case at the Y. M. C. A. building last evening attracted a fair audience. Mr. Case is a miner of a score of years' experience and knows how to tell some interesting facts in an interesting manner. He spent several years in Alaska and mined gold along some of the rich finds that so much is heard of at the present time.

Mr. Case described the method of mining with much attention to detail and told many facts that would serve to guide anyone who considered going to that country. He says that there are numerous regions as rich if not richer than the Klondike. The prospector going there need not fear that he cannot find gold-bearing gravel, for it is spread out over many parts of the country. He will, however, have to search it out for himself, and need not expect any assistance from those who are already there.

Mr. Case explained that the climate of Alaska varies in different localities. In the northern part the summer averages 100 days. The winter is long, the nights are still longer and there is no end to the thermometer. In the south the climate is as mild as that of Scotland. Cereals grow in the coast districts, but seldom ripen. The great wealth of the country consists in the unparalleled yield of gold. The greatest wealth is along the rivers. Miners have been at work for over twenty-five years, but have said nothing. It is the talk of the tenderfoot that has caused all this excitement. For twenty-six years it has been known that there is gold at the source of the Yukon but the Indians claim the country, and while they do not do much mining themselves, they know the value of the gold and object to anyone's taking it away from them.

Alaska yields some diamonds, garnets, rubies and other precious stones, and is rich in precious metals, copper, coal, oil, furs, fish, game and timber. The best piece of copper ever produced came from Alaska. It weighed over 1,800 pounds and is 98 1/2 per cent pure. There is a lake in Alaska of pure petroleum fed by coal oil springs. In fact there are more big things in Alaska than the world has ever seen. Since its purchase from Russia it has seldom yielded less than 3103,000,000. Alaska itself is a big thing, bigger than most people realize. It is two and one-half times as large as Texas, 3 times as large as the British Isles, and as large as all the states east of the Mississippi and north of Ohio river, including Virginia and West Virginia. The Yukon river pours a volume of water three times as large as that of the Mississippi into the sea. It is navigable for 2,600 miles, 700 miles from the sea. It is twenty miles wide, and 100 miles from the sea it is so wide that one cannot see across it.

All the streams above the Klondike contain gold. The glaciers, which were the largest in the northern hemisphere, were responsible for the wonderful deposits of gold. There is a great deal of talk about the luck of mining. There is no chance connected with mining. There is no business so certain of success as mining if honestly and intelligently followed.

STORY OF MISHAPS AROUND HANOVER

FRED LEWIS AND GEORGE EHRLINGER INJURED.

Tight Frost Reported From Near Emerald Grove—Harvest Home Social—Fairfield Milk Sold at 47 1/5 Cents During July—New Machinery For Grove Creamery.

Hanover, Aug. 24.—Fred Lewis was quite seriously injured by being thrown from his wagon. The horses ran away. George Ehrlinger, Sr., fell from his wagon while unloading milk and injured himself so that he is confined to the house. The band social was a success both socially and financially. The "boys" cleared about $18 and everybody reported a good time. The M. W. A. picnic was very enjoyable. Threshing is nearly done. The yield of oats is rather light but the quality is above the average. Tobacco harvesting is well under way and it promises well for a good crop.

Farmers Nervous Over the Cool Nights—Harvest Home Social Aug. 27.

Emerald Grove, Aug. 24.—Reports of light frosts on last Thursday morning made farmers a trifle nervous. A "Harvest Home Social" will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Barless on Friday evening, Aug. 27, (this week.) Chicken pie and all good things of the harvest will be served. Mrs. D. F. Brown and children have been visiting among relatives, on the prairie. Mr. and Mrs. Brown are changing their residence from St. Paul, Minn., to Cleveland, Ohio, where Mr. Brown will be interested with the Standard Lighting Co. Some young people had a runaway at the Congregational church, Sunday evening. A top carriage was badly wrecked. James Lilburn and sister Agnes, who have been camping at Koshkonong Lake, returned last Saturday. The Hadden and Lamb party have also arrived home from the same lake and report about ten days of enjoyment. One of the happy events of the season for the little folks was the birthday party given last week by Miss May Barless. Refreshments were served on the lawn and were of the blue ribbon order. About thirty-five enjoyed the event. Camp 3585 M. W. A. meets Saturday evening of this week. As one or two will be admitted and initiated it is requested that all be present. Charles D. Fitch has purchased for his factory a new Victor churn and butter worker combined. T. H. Wetmore and wife are at West Union, Iowa, making Mr. Wetmore's brother a visit. John W. Davis is shedding some very fine tobacco. Miss Leona Jones and her brother Willie entertained about thirty Saturday afternoon on the occasion being the anniversary of their birth. The afternoon was full of fun and feasting, which all enjoyed, and will be remembered. Barrel salt at Gillies & Jones. Lake Geneva was visited by quite a delegation from this place last week. Rumor says one of the young men from Zion hill called. Willie attempted to pilot the company home, but as it was after sundown he lost his way and took the party into Elkhorn. The same young man has a great notion of wandering off south and east from home and it is excusable.

FAIRFIELD MILK SOLD AT 47 1/5

July Figures Announced—Wedding of Annie E. Horne to Bernard Conroy

Fairfield, Aug. 24.—Our factory paid 47 1/5 cents a hundred for July milk. Miss Elma Fryer is calling on her young friends this week. Mrs. Waterman of Chicago, visited friends at this place last week. Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Kane attended the Conroy-Horne wedding at Whitewater last Wednesday. Miss Ida White of Appleton, attended church at this place last Sunday. Mrs. Eugene Serl entertained her sisters from Milton over Sunday. Mrs. Mary Woodard, of Allen's Grove, made a pleasant call at A. D. Clark's on Monday last. Mrs. E. Wetmore and Mrs. S. D. Serl are enjoying a visit with a cousin from Milwaukee. The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Horne, of Whitewater, was the scene of a pleasant event at noon on Wednesday, Aug. 18 when their daughter, Annie E. Horne and Bernard Conroy were united in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. Johnson of the Episcopal church. Mr. Conroy is the leading merchant of Fairfield and is a gentleman who has the respect of all his friends. The bride has been his confidential clerk and has had charge of the post office at this place for the past four years and has made many friends during her residence among us. We bespeak a prosperous future for the happy couple.

THE NEWS OF MILTON TOWN

Items of Interest Gathered by The Gazette Correspondent.

(THE GAZETTE AGENCY)

(W. W. CLARKE, Manager)

(Milton, Wis., Aug. 24, 1897.)

Friday afternoon the "Kid" nine came out prepared to play a game with a similar sized aggregation from Janesville, but when the visitors put in an appearance they overzeal the Kids much as Goliath did David and not being stone slingers they proceeded to replace some of their players with men who approached in weight and size to the "Bower City" representatives. Then they proceeded to polish off the Janesvillians by a score of eighteen to six. Willis Cole, the Junction "bantam," put up the star game among the Milton players, avoiding duels and age considered, and made a clean score. Janesville made six runs in the first and second innings, but after Ed.

Greene went in the box they did not get a run.

The friends of Prof. P. L. Clarke and wife, who started for their new home in Colorado, Monday, tendered them a surprise reception at the home of Dr. Crandall, Saturday evening. There was a large number present and the event was a social success. Coffee, chocolate and cake were served to the guests.

The following named persons left for Buffalo, Monday, as representatives of this village and vicinity at the National Encampment: S. S. Thomas and wife, Miss Kate Clarke, Mesdames W. H. Davidson and Ida Weile, Messrs. A. D. Rurdick, C. L. Clarke and A. J. Wells, Profs. A. R. Crandall and H. W. Rood.

A. T. Alexander and Miss Sarah Rooder, who have been spending several weeks at St. Paul and other points came home last week.

E. B. Saunders and Mrs. A. Whitford have gone to Salem, West Virginia to attend the Seventh day Baptist general conference.

Charles N. Flagler, who is now engaged in the banking business at Lime Springs, Iowa, made his friends a flying visit, Sunday.

A young German by the name of Schultz ran a tobacco spud into his hand Monday and received a serious injury.

J. H. Granger made a forty mile on his wheel, Saturday, taking in Allen Grove and Fairfield to visit his children.

Mrs. Helen Burdick (and daughter, Miss Cora, of Milwaukee, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Coon.

Mrs. Platts and Arthur, drive to Richmond, Ill., today, where they will visit relatives.

Charles F. Tonpkins has gone east, and expects to go into business in New York city.

Dighton Shaw has been visiting Dr. G. E. Crossley, at Algonquin, Ill. Frank Story sold six Holstein cows from his herd Saturday, for $240.

EZRA CRANDALL BURIED TODAY

Pioneer Milton Banker Laid to Rest—Reception to P. L. Clarke.

Milton Aug. 24.—The funeral of Ezra Crandall took place this afternoon and was conducted by his pastor the Rev. Dr. Platts, assisted by his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Platts, assisted by President Whitford of Milton College, the Rev. L. C. Randolph, of Chicago, and others.

PRISON-GOODS LAW IS VOID.

W. G. Wheeler Says the Fact Was Recognized by the Committee.

The law enacted by the last legislature requiring the labelling of convict made goods brought into Wisconsin from other states, was today declared unconstitutional by Judge Besman of the United States court, who held that it was void because it interfered with interstate commerce.

The court said that chapter 155, because it discriminated in favor of Wisconsin convict made goods, and against similar goods, and against similar goods brought in from other states, was in the nature of an interference with interstate commerce, and therefore void.

"The same point was raised before the revision committee," said W. G. Wheeler this morning. "It was realized that the law would not stand because of the discrimination in favor of Wisconsin prison made goods. The legislature voted down a provision applying all prison made goods, however, so the committee did not feel authorized to make a change."

H. F. NOTT, Dealer in

Pianos and Organs, Janesville, Wis.:

Dear Sir:—We purchased a Braumuller Piano about five years ago and can truthfully say that I take pleasure in stating that it has given the most perfect satisfaction in our home. Its capacity for standing in tune is certainly wonderful and the tone today is as good if not better than the day we bought it, and would recommend it to any one wanting a first-class Piano.

Respectfully Yours,

"Temperance."

A little schoolgirl in the rural districts of Georgia was assigned a composition on "Temperance," and the following is the result: "Temperance is more better than whisky. Whisky is ten cents a drink, and lots of it. My pa drinks whisky. He has been full 113 times. One night he came home late and my ma went out and cut some hickories and walloped him good. Then she ducked his head in a tub of soap-suds and locked him up in the barn. And the next morning my pa said he reckon he'd swear off."—Atlanta Constitution.

"Has he had any real, practical experience in the theatrical business?" asked the manager who was looking for an assistant.

"No," replied Mr. Stowmington Barnes, thoughtfully. "I can't say he has. He has been connected with the profession a long time, but he never, to my knowledge, was with an attraction that didn't make money enough to pay expenses."—Washington Star.

After the Party.

Mrs. Beeson—George, what makes you so quiet when you're out in company? You sit around like a dumb person. Why don't you talk more?

Mr. Beeson—My dear, I do talk when I am out alone. I was quiet this evening because I thought it wouldn't be just the thing for one family to monopolize the conversation.—Cleveland Leader.

In the Cannibal Islands.

"What is the news from our army?" asked the king.

"The general," replied the messenger, "is again victorious. He had defeated the enemy with tremendous slaughter. So many captives have been killed and roasted that our warriors are eating nine meals a day."

"H'm," mused the king. "That fellow is getting more like Gen. Weyler every day. To-morrow, I suppose, he'll be claiming eleven meals a day and imploring me to send him something to eat."

An Untimely Remark.

An aunt of Mrs. Chaffie is paying the family a visit. At the breakfast table she said to Johnnie, who was eyeing her closely.

"I believe Johnnie, you are counting every biscuit I eat."

"No, I ain't trying. Pa says you eat so many there's no counting 'em," replied Johnnie, much to the annoyance of his parents, as the aunt is quite wealthy.

A Disagreeable Consequence.

"You say you have to visit your rich relatives. Why? Don't they treat you well?"

"Oh, yes, they always do every thing they can to make it pleasant for us, but my wife never gets through complaining until about two weeks after each visit because we are not as well off as they."—Cleveland Leader.

Not a Pioneer.

"And how comes it," asked the missionary, "that you never eat people of your own race?"

The face of the cannibal King lit up with a smile.

"I should so hate," he said, softly, "to cultivate a universal desire for that dark-brown taste."—New York Journal.

A Good Idea.

"I see from the war news," remarked Mrs. Snaggs, "that several magazines have been captured."

"Yes," replied Mr. Snaggs. "I suppose the object is to prevent the editors from filling their pages with war articles for the next twenty-five years."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Little More Cost Brings Big Profits.

The addressing, folding, inclosing, sealing and stamping of five thousand circulars, with postage, will cost at least $65, whether the circular is good or bad. Notwithstanding this fixed charge, some strive to save a dollar or two on the cost of printing, although the goods advertised are to be judged by the character of the printing, just as a house is judged by the character of its salesmen. Good printing costs but little more, and that "little more" brings greater returns than any other part of the cost. Order your printing where good work is assured.

REVENUES ARE GROWING.

The revenues under the Dingley bill are growing with encouraging steadiness. Nobody supposes that the revenues will meet expenditures in August, and not many persons believe that they will do this in September. There was a large deficit in July, and there will be another shortage this month, and perhaps one next month. All this, however, was looked for all along by intelligent republicans, and they do not feel in the slightest degree alarmed at the conditions.

As everybody knows, the chief reason why there has been such a heavy falling off in imports in the past few months is because of the great inrush of goods in the preceding three or four months to escape the higher duties which, as was generally expected, would be imposed on many articles by the new tariff. This importation in excess of immediate needs will supply the market for a few weeks, and thus cut down the revenues for that time, but the time will not be as long as every one supposed it would be at the outset. The business improvement which is under way is greater than was expected, and this will increase the demand for foreign as well as domestic goods. Nobody need be surprised if the government's balance sheet for October shows a handsome excess on the credit side of the account.

A WAY OF RUIN.

All who wavered last fall should note the financial paralysis which the fall in silver has caused in Mexico and try to realize the condition of collapse which would have taken place in the United States if this country was on the silver basis, as it would be before this time if Bryan had been elected. The debt, governmental and private, which the United States owes to the outside world is, of course, many times larger than Mexico's, and all of it is contracted on the gold basis. The billions of dollars of savings of the wage workers of the country represented by savings bank accounts, building associations' stocks, life insurance policies and other investments would all be payable now in forty cent dollars. The best day's work which the American people ever did was that by which, on November 3, 1896, they smashed Bryanism.

England has a small war on its hands in India, and is threatened with a larger one in the same quarter. In fact, in some region or other of her domain she has a war nearly all of the time. This is one of the penalties which attach to world-wide empire, and to being obliged to look after the people's affairs.

We are not sending much gold abroad but are sending steel rails to India, Ireland and China and an electric railway equipment to London. Outsiders want our money this summer which is a very good sign.

The fifty cent dollar was bad enough, the forty cent dollar is still more disconcerting to Bryanites and they are at a loss to know what to say when it slides toward a thirty-five cent dollar.

They have primitive ideas about some things in France. They have imprisoned the man responsible for the great charity bazaar fire in Rue Jean Goujon.

Prof. Andree's reticence as to his whereabouts leads to the suspicion that he is the same balloonist that exhibited in Janesville.

The prosperity we are having this year is the genuine thing—not the forty cent kind with a dollar seal on it.

Morocco's Street Hawkers.

In Morocco the street hawker recommends his wares by pledging the credit of a saint: "In the name of our Lord Mohammed Al Hadji! Popcorn! Popcorn!" "In the name of Sidna Ali-bokhala! Melons! Nice, sweet melons!" "God is gracious! Cool water!" These and the like are heard at every turn. Even the auctioneer who is calling out the price of a slave girl or the bids for a carpet is careful to interlard his professional talk with allusions to his Maker and the plethora of Moorish saints.

PLANS OF NEW DEPOT PLEASE COMMITTEE

STONE AND BRICK STRUCTURE OF MODERN TYPE.

Neither Oshkosh Nor Fond du Lac Has as Handsome a Building—The C. & N. W. Officials Send a Letter Promising That Work Will be Crowded Right Along.

Mayor Thoroughgood has received the following letter of assurance from the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company relative to the erection of a new depot in this city.

Chicago, August 24, 1897.
"Hon. John Thoroughgood, Mayor City of Janesville, Wis. Dear Sir:—With reference to the petition numerously signed by citizens of Janesville, for the vacation of portions of Wall and Marion streets in your city, I have to advise you on behalf of this company, that it is our purpose to begin the erection of a first-class passenger depot, with the accompanying platforms and sheds, for the accommodation of the patrons of our road, immediately upon the vacating of such streets, and to prosecute the work to completion with all due diligence, providing of course, such vacation shall take effect early enough to warrant the prosecution of the work economically. We cannot undertake to erect such a building during the late fall and winter months, but should have time after the vacation of the streets to complete the work before "freezing weather." Otherwise it will be necessary to postpone such improvements until the "spring."

Committee Visited Chicago.

A committee consisting of Mayor Thoroughgood, Edward M. Hyzer, Pliny Norcross, John V. Norcross and City Attorney McElroy examined the plans for the proposed depot on Tuesday. The main building faces the north end and is two stories in height and forty-five feet wide. On the upper floor will be office for the division superintendent and the operators. On the lower floor will be a main waiting room 28 by 42 feet, a woman's room 28 by 28 feet, the ticket office and proper toilet rooms. A porte-cocher will enable persons to reach the depot in conveyances in any kind of weather. The baggage and express building will be separate from the main building. The entire length of the depot will be 224 feet with 300 feet of shed running from Academy street and an additional length of shed of 30 feet extending over the rest of the platform, the entire platform of 600 feet being covered with an ornamental shed constructed of iron.

Built in Colonial Style.

The style of architecture is colonial. The buildings are to be of stone and brick with tiled roofs. It will be a modern, handsome structure in every particular, and much more imposing than the depots in either Oshkosh or Fond du Lac. The depot will be one that all citizens will be proud of, and there should be such public spirit here as to leave nothing undone that may enable one to receive it.

Mayor Thoroughgood and the committee had two sessions with the officials of the Northwestern road and one with the management of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, both of which were of the most cordial nature, and they are hopeful that Janesville will soon have a modern depot.

ARQUETTE TAKES A CHANGE

Prefers to Wait and Be Tried in the Circuit Court.

John Arquette was forced to plead to an information in the municipal court this morning. The information charged him with burglary and receiving stolen goods of a value exceeding twenty dollars—a state's prison offense. John very sadly shook his head as he pleaded not guilty. Attorney John Cunningham who has defended Arquette up to date, informed the court that Arquette had no money and asked on behalf of Arquette that the court appoint counsel. Arquette when questioned said that various parcels of real estate that he was reported to own were in the names of members of his family. Attorney John Cunningham was appointed counsel and immediately presented an affidavit signed by Arquette asking for a change of venue to the circuit court on the ground of prejudice. It was granted and if John is after delay and a more mellow public opinion he will get it, as he will help out the salary Sheriff Acheson gets from the county between now and October, unless he finds some one tender hearted enough to sign a thousand dollar bail bond.

HIS LIFE CUT OFF BY SUDDEN BLOW

DEATH OF W. G. WHEELLOCK A GREAT SHOCK

Complained of Sickness About 5 O'clock But Refused to Have a Doctor—At 9 O'clock He Passed Away—None Of His Family Were in the City.

Wadsworth G. Wheellock died suddenly at his home, 256 Park Place a few minutes before 9 o'clock last evening. His family were all out of the city but there were with him when he died, Mrs. Mary S. Lappin, Mrs. E. M. Hyzer, Mrs. Mary Doty, Mr. and Mrs. Sleeper, who are visiting Mrs. Lappin, E. M. Hyzer and Dr. Q. O. Sutherland.

Mr. Wheellock had been in poor health for some time, and four months ago he went to the sanitarium at Battle Creek, Michigan. There he took a thorough course of treatment. About the first of July Mrs. Wheellock joined him at Battle Creek, the treatment having benefited him so much that he had induced her to come and take a course at the same place. She is now at the sanitarium and was expecting to start for home the first of September. The announcement of her husband's death came to her last evening without warning.

Taken Ill About 5 O'clock.

Mr. Wheellock was in his store all day yesterday. He was taken sick about 5 o'clock but stayed at his desk until 6 o'clock and George S. Wright then took him home in the delivery wagon. Mr. Wheellock was assisted into the house, but refused to have a doctor called. He ate no supper and about 8 o'clock his sufferings grew more intense and he told the servant girl, Anna Berg, to get a doctor.

When Miss Berg returned from Dr. Sutherland's house Mr. Wheellock was in the bath room, groaning and in great pain. Mrs. Lappin was called at once. When she came Mr. Wheellock had come out in the sitting room and was sitting in the chair. Dr. Sutherland and the members of Mrs. Lappin's household had arrived and the now dying man was placed upon a sofa. He passed away before any medicine could be given. Neu algia of the heart was apparently the cause of death.

An Early Settler.

Mr. Wheellock was a well known figure in Janesville mercantile life. He had made Janesville his home for forty years and after building up a profitable business here had been quick to realize the trade possibilities in a chain of stores in other cities. His plans succeeded and put him in position to command the market in many respects.

Never an aspirant for public office Mr. Wheellock was zealous in his devotion to the interests of the city. He was a valued member of the Congregational church.

Besides a widow Mr. Wheellock leaves four sons to mourn his loss, Charles E., of Peoria, Ill.; George H., of South Bend, Ind.; Arthur, of Rockford, Ill., and Frank W., who is in the employ of the Wheeling Pottery company, of Wheeling, West Virginia, as traveling salesman.

Mrs. William Klenke

Mrs. William Klenke, formerly of this city, died in St. Louis last evening of typhoid fever. Mrs. Klenke was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Schaller, of 204 Linn street, this city, and a sister of Messrs. Albert, Charles H., George and Fred R. Schaller of this city. Her husband was a Lutheran teacher, and she had been married about twelve years. She was twenty-nine years of age and leaves beside a husband two children, a boy and a girl. Many friends in this city will unite in expressions of sympathy to the stricken family.

Andrew Schaller is expected to return from St. Louis with the remains tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock. Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. from the home and 2:30 p. m. from St. Paul's church.

Mrs. Mary Ward.

Mrs. A. L. Smith received word today of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Ward, August 22 in Rutland, Vermont. Mrs. Ward was a former resident of this city. She was about 67 years old and leaves a son, Matt. J. Ward of New York and three daughters.

Young People From Illinois Found in the Stairway of the Sutherland Block Looking For Somebody to Marry Them—Prompt Assistance Is Given.

On the noon train from the south arrived Gust. W. Hindenberg and Miss Lucius Tadd of Sycamore, Ill., and Clarence E. Blake and Miss Maud Tadd of DeKalb, Ill.

The noon train, mind you. On the 2:10 train for the south they returned as Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Hindenberg and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Blake.

When Dr. H. A. Palmer reached his office this afternoon he found the two blushing couples standing without. They told him they had just ten minutes to get married in before their train left. Justice M. P. Richardson was not in sight and they were at a loss to know what to do.

Now Dr. Palmer is a regularly ordained Baptist minister as well as a first class dentist. In just one minute's time the doctor was hurrying to at book store for two marriage certificates, and the double wedding was put through without delay. Rev. E. B. Edmunds of Beaver Dam, who was visiting Dr. Palmer, assisted.

A CONFLICT OF EVIDENCE.

BY RODRIGUES OTTOLENGUI
AUTHOR OF "AN ARTIST IN CRIME," ETC.

COPYRIGHT, 1897, BY G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS.

CHAPTER I.—Fifteen years before the opening of the story John Lewis went to live in a place called Lee, in New Hampshire, with a little girl 6 years old, Virginia, the daughter of his deceased sister. He had a son who had been left at school, but ran away and shipped for China. Five years after Lewis went to Lee a family named Marvel also settled there. Young Walter Marvel met and loved Virginia Lewis. Alice Marvel, Walter's sister, and Harry Lucas also met and were reported to be in love with each other. At the opening of the story a person purporting to be the missing son of John Lewis arrives at Lee. Walter Marvel proposes for Virginia's hand to her uncle, who refuses, telling him that his uncle, whose name he bears, was a villain and a convict. Young Marvel draws a pistol and shoots at Lewis, but his aim is diverted by Virginia. Soon after Lewis is found dead in his room with two bullet holes in his body. His death occurs simultaneously with the arrival of the man who claims to be his son. II.—Mr. Barnes, the celebrated detective, and Tom Burrows, another detective, take up the case, strongly suspecting Virginia as the criminal. III.—They examine the grounds about the house where the murder is committed and find footprints of a man and a woman, the woman's footprints strengthening their suspicions of Virginia. They also find two pistols, one marked "Virginia Lewis," the other marked "Alice Marvel." Virginia writes a letter and goes away with it. Barnes disbelieves follows her. IV.—Virginia gives her letter to one Will Everly, who posts it. Barnes keeps his eyes on it, gets possession of it, and thus learns the whereabouts of Walter Marvel. V.—Virginia visits Alice Marvel, who betrays a knowledge of the murderer. VI.—John Lewis, the supposed son of the murdered man, produces envelopes addressed to him to prove his identity. He accuses a woman of leaving his room in a night. VII.—The X-Barnes arrives at Lee with young Marvel, and an inquest is held, at which Alice Marvel testifies that she fired one of the shots that killed Lewis, and Virginia confesses that she murdered her uncle, presumably to shield the real murderer. XI, XII, XIII, XIV, and XV.—Virginia is released and Walter Marvel is arrested for the murder. Barnes promises Virginia to try clear her lover and says about doing it.

CHAPTER XII.

JOHN LEWIS SUPPLIES THE CLEW.

Although the verdict had been anticipated by the majority of those who had been present throughout the examination, all were nevertheless horrified, even though they admitted its justice in consideration of the evidence. There were some, of course, who stoutly maintained that Virginia was innocent, but they were chiefly her most intimate friends. These proclaimed themselves to be in a position to judge better than those who did not know her so well. Unhesitatingly they asserted that her whole life and character made it utterly preposterous to harbor a suspicion of a crime of so heinous a nature. Said one, "Does an innocent girl become a hardened criminal in a moment?" But others gravely shook their heads and readily recalled instances where equally respectable individuals had been proved guilty of murder. After all, horrible as it is to take life, yet, viewed from a certain standpoint, murder is less dishonorable than theft. One who would scorn even to tell a lie might yet in anger or under great provocation unhesitatingly send another to his last account. So respectability is scarcely a defense against a charge of murder.

The town of Lee is in Strafford county, and the county seat is Dover. Here the grand jury meets, and here the trial would take place if there should be one. Squire Olney, at the termination of the inquest, therefore declared that Virginia must be taken to Dover on the following day, together with the record of the evidence which would of course be presented to the grand jury. It was decided that she should pass the night at the residence of the squire, who would personally drive over with her early in the morning. The squire in all his lifetime had never been placed in a position so painful to himself and so trying to all his pride in the morality of his town. It was bad enough to have a murder, but that the guilty party should be a woman, and she the most respected and admired female in the town, was simply terrible.

As soon as Mr. Barnes learned of the disposition to be made of the prisoner, for such she was to be considered now, he determined to seek rest at the earliest possible moment. Wishing to go on to Riverside and share the room which had been provided for Burrows, he sought for that young man, but could find him nowhere. He was somewhat annoyed at this, as he wished to talk with him on some of the points brought out in the examination. Finally, concluding that Burrows must have gone to the farm, as it was already after dark, he decided to go there also, and so started immediately. He had walked but a few rods when he overtook John Lewis and, recognizing him, said:

"Ah, Mr. Lewis, are you going to the farm?"

"I am, and, supposing that you would put up there for the night, I have waited to join you as you passed. I could not see you at the moment when the inquest ended, for you were speaking to the squire."

"Yes, I wished to know what would be done with Miss Lewis. She will stay at the squire's house tonight and be taken to Dover in the morning."

The two men walked along for some little distance without speaking, until at length Lewis broke the silence, and when he did so Mr. Barnes noticed that he spoke very earnestly, as though the subject concerned him nearly. At first it seemed to the detective that this interest was more than natural, but then he recalled to mind the fact that the girl was a relative, and as such would of course attract his sympathy.

"Mr. Barnes," began Lewis, "what do you think of the result of the inquiry?"

As I have already stated, Mr. Barnes was most careful in forming definite opinions, and he was still more so in giving expression to them. He felt a double need of caution at this time and determined rather to discover what his companion thought than to commit himself by any direct reply to this leading question.

"Well," he responded, "what other verdict could you look for under the circumstances?"

"I suppose none! Nevertheless a stigma has been placed on that girl which she does not deserve. At least," he continued quickly, "that is my opinion."

"You mean that you think Miss Lewis is innocent?"

"I do decidedly."

"Will you tell me your reasons?"

This was exactly what Mr. Barnes most desired; that some one should defend this girl to him. Therefore if in the subsequent conversation he seemed to be accusing her it was no evidence that he himself thought her guilty, but only that such a course was the one best calculated to draw out the strongest arguments in her favor which might occur to Lewis. Mr. Barnes was wise enough not to underestimate the ability of any man. Very often in his experience most valuable hints had been given to him by persons from whom he had least expected assistance.

"I will try," said Lewis, in reply to Mr. Barnes. "Of course I was present at the entire inquiry. I was not needed on the witness stand, as all that I could have testified to would have been the discovery of the body, and that was not deemed of sufficient importance by the squire. As the deceased was my own father, it is but natural that I should take a great interest in seeing the crime avenged. I therefore listened most attentively to all that was brought out in the examination of the several witnesses. And it is just this that makes me feel so sure that Miss Lewis is actuated more by a desire to shield some one else than by any other motive."

"Ah, but who is she shielding? You must remember that she is doing a very dangerous thing when she accuses herself."

"Miss Lewis is a much cleverer woman than you may believe her to be, and she knows well enough that she is in no real danger. She has confessed. What of that? When she is made to appear in court, she will retract this confession. Then how will you convict her? What evidence is there against her besides her own words? She will tell you that she was excited, that she did not realize what she was saying. What will you be able to do? She is a woman,

There stood Burrows examining a pistol, and the sympathy of the jury will be in her favor. American juries are proverbially lenient toward her sex. She will be acquitted, but where will your real criminal be? In some foreign land."

Mr. Barnes listened with considerable interest to all this, for it was precisely what had been passing in his own mind. He very well knew that a confession of so grave a crime as murder would not be by any means assure a conviction, and he had by no means underrated the girl's ability as a bold plotter. Still, he would not dismiss from his mind the possibility that, after all, she might be guilty. The story which she had told was a most plausible one. Moreover, its very simplicity seemed to prevent a suspicion that it had been manufactured. Besides, it fitted so well all the most complicated points in the case. Then, how did she know that there were two wounds? Neither the doctor nor Burrows would have told her, and as she was the last witness to enter the room she could not have heard the previous testimony.

Addressing his companion again, he said:

"All that is very true, but suppose that Miss Lewis does not retract?"

"But I tell you she will. Why should she allow herself to suffer the penalty—and such a penalty—when she is innocent? As soon as the real criminal has had time to get away safely she will tell an entirely different tale. You will see."

"Why are you so sure that she is acting a part?"

"Why did she not tell the truth at once if it was her intention to do so?"

"Ah! Who can be sure of the workings of a human mind, and of the motives which actuate any given course?"

"In this case it seems to me quite simple. When she first testified, she thought that the murderer was safe."

"Whom do they suspect, then?"

"Can you be in doubt? Walter Marvel, of course. Whom else but her lover would she risk her life to save?"

"But the dead man was her uncle, her adopted father. Did she not love him enough to refuse to leave him to this very lover? Then why should she not wish to avenge his death?"

"Granted that she loved him, he was dead, while her lover is alive. She would care more for the living than the dead. The uncle cannot be restored; therefore the lover must not be sacrificed. Does she know what she will do? She will make every effort to save him, and then she will still refuse to marry him. She is a strange woman!"

"How do you know her character so well?" said the detective sharply. Lewis started slightly, but replied quickly:

"I do not know. I am simply telling you my opinions, formed on the life that I have seen of her."

Mr. Barnes was satisfied with this answer—at least he did not let it appear if he was not—and, resuming the thread of their discourse, he asked:

"Have you any special reason for thinking that Marvel is guilty?"

"If not guilty, how did his pocket come to be in the possession of my father? It is very evident that, even if Miss Lewis tells the truth, she has not accounted for that mystery. This is a point that Mr. Tupper mentioned."

"I mean to investigate that matter, of course, but I have seen stranger things than that explained away."

"Well, then, let me call your attention to another point. Do you remember the story that the squire told us of the row at the birthday fete?"

"Certainly."

"Very good. If you do, you will recollect that the squire said that my father kept Marvel's pistol. Now, what has become of that weapon?"

Mr. Barnes saw at once the value of this, and it had certainly not occurred to him. He was thankful for this conversation.

"We have not looked for it," he replied.

"You may not have done so, but I have searched everywhere, and it is not to be found."

"Perhaps the squire may have it."

"I have asked him, and he assures me that my father would not part with the evidence of the assault which had been made on him. More than that, the squire told me that he kept it locked in a drawer in the parlor."

"How, then, could Marvel have obtained it?"

"My idea is this: I think that after his interview with Miss Lewis across the river Marvel, as he admits, came to the farm. I think he sought an interview with my father; that they quarreled, and that my father took up the pistol, whereupon Marvel got it away from him and shot him."

Mr. Barnes shook his head. "There is no sign of a struggle. Besides, if that is the truth, how could your father have written the name of Walter Marvel on the slip of paper?"

Lewis thought a minute and then replied:

"I have it. When my father heard the barking of the dog outside, he took Marvel's pistol and fired at the man whom he saw there. At the same moment a bullet struck him. This was either from Lucas' pistol or else was the shot fired by Miss Marvel from the summer house, as she declared. Then, when Marvel came, the weapon may have been on the table right at hand, for as father was wounded he would scarcely have thought of locking up the weapon again. As for the writing, that may be as Miss Lewis guessed. My father thought Marvel had fired the first shot and so wrote a line to that effect, not realizing to what extent he had been wounded."

"But what about the empty shell in Miss Lewis' weapon?"

"Perhaps her first statement was correct, and she had previously fired it, or, again, my father may have fired it at Marvel in self defense."

A silence followed, and Mr. Barnes did not speak for several minutes, during which time he was thinking deeply. At last, however, he said:

"You are right; it is of importance to find this missing pistol. But where can we look for it? That is the question."

"I think I can guess that, too," said the other eagerly—a little too eagerly, thought Mr. Barnes—although he reflected that when a novice is working out a mystery of a great crime he is usually impetuous. Lewis continued: "Marvel himself described his movements on leaving the farm. First he went home; then, making a bundle of his wet clothes, he threw them into the river, and, lastly, he went to his old house in Epping. Now, either he threw the pistol in the river, or else, remembering that it has his name on it, as young Harrison testified, he was shrewd enough to take it with him and hide it in the Epping place."

"Your reasoning is very good, and it may be as well for me to go to Epping in the morning."

"Do so, and while you are gone I will have the river dragged, in the hope of recovering the clothing!"

Mr. Barnes stopped, looked at Lewis a moment; then slowly and distinctly he said:

"Mr. Lewis, I would prefer that you go with me to Epping."

"Oh," said Lewis quickly, "I should like that, but I thought you detectives preferred to work alone."

"We do, as a rule, but I will make an exception in this case," returned Mr. Barnes dryly.

By this time they had reached Riverside, and both at once retired to rest.

Mr. Barnes awoke early and called Lewis, who was still abed when he entered his room, and together they went to Squire Olney's house, where Mr. Barnes explained that something had turned up which would prevent his accompanying him to Dover. With Lewis, he then hastened to the depot, where he was just in time to catch the train which passed at 6:30, and getting aboard they reached Epping a few minutes before 7 o'clock.

After a little time spent in inquiries Mr. Barnes learned the locality of the house of which he was in search and at once repaired thither. Arrived at the place, which was about a mile beyond the more densely built portion of the town, he found it to be, as described, in a terribly dilapidated condition, and, recessed considerably from the road, it was almost hidden amid an overgrowth of trees and shrubbery. Without any hesitation the two men entered the place, but scarcely had they crossed the threshold of the door when Mr. Barnes uttered an exclamation of astonishment, for there in front of him stood Tom Burrows examining a pistol which he held in his hand.

A Healthy Body and a Clear Head

If indigestion, constipation and biliousness torment the body, the head cannot be clear. These disorders react upon the brain most hurtfully, and produce a cloudiness in the organ of thought not experienced by a healthy man. Happily, these brain-creating maladies may be entirely dispelled by that peerless alternative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which cheers, refreshes and invigorates the brain and nerves, while it regulates the organs of digestion, assimilation, and urinary secretion. It expels the morbid humors which poison the system through the bowels and urinary passages, and exerts a powerful invigorating influence as well. Its cathartic action is very gentle, violent or painful, but even, natural and progressive. As an appetizer and sleep promoter the Bitters is unrivaled; it mitigates the infirmities of age, renews the elements perished to the gentler sex, arrests premature decay, and builds up a healthy and vigorous physique.

Prudence.

"I may be over-careful," she said, as she hid the plated spoons and her curling irons in the bottom of her trunk before she went out shopping, "but I just can't bear to run any risks."

Then she pinned her gold watch to the outside of her dress by a blue ribbon and went downtown.—Up-to-Date.

A Remarkable Cure of Chronic Diarrhoea.

In 1902, when I served my country as a private in Company A, 167th Pennsylvania Volunteers, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. It has given me a great deal of trouble ever since. I have tried a dozen different medicines and several prominent doctors without any permanent relief. Not long ago a friend sent me a sample bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and after that I bought and took a 50-cent bottle, and now I can say that I am entirely cured. I cannot be thankful enough to you for this great remedy, and recommend it to all suffering veterans. If in doubt write me. Yours gratefully, HENRY STEINBERGER, Allentown, Pa. Sold at C. D. Stevens' pharmacy, corner Main and Milwaukee streets.

It is always gratifying to receive testimonials for Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Kobey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo.; and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. For sale at C. D. Stevens' pharmacy corner Main and Milwaukee streets.

SHADOWED

The girl who stands on the bridge was charged with murdering her uncle. The man in the background is a detective. He thought she did. The evidence pointed strongly toward her lover. To save him she confessed. But she didn't do the shooting. This is only one of a thousand thrilling incidents in

By Rodrigues Ottolengui, a most absorbing detective story. We have never offered a more exciting narrative to our readers. The first chapters will be found in these columns.

Gas Stove Philosophy

MATCHES CHEAPER THAN GAS.

Light a burner only when you are ready to use it and turn it off the instant you are done with it. This is the real secret of small gas bills. When a top burner is first lighted the fire is then as hot as though it had been lighted an hour. Take instant advantage of this and lower flame after a thing has once started to cook. Gas is the most economical fuel when ordinary care is taken. Gas Stoves can be used as well in cool weather as in the heated season; their great convenience is the same at all times. The Gas Stove is a complete stove for all kinds of cooking. The even heat of the Gas Stove brings better cooking results than that of other stoves. As an emergency stove the Gas Stove has no equal. It pays for itself on occasions of great hurry. The draught of the Gas Stove is always the same—because it requires no draught. The wind may shift or the chimney become clogged, but the Gas stove does its work just the same. The Gas Stove lengthens one's life and the overworked housewife can truly appreciate the leisure hours gained through its use.

ARCHIE REID & CO.

Women Wage Earners in Hungary.

I cannot agree with my Hungarian friend that there are no thin and pale countenances to be seen among these women. I must in all sincerity draw another picture. I caught its outlines, not in one of the crowded cafes or along the boulevard or down by the side of the blue Danube, but up a back street in one of the new quarters of the rapidly growing city. I had seen the same sight in Bucharest the day before and knew what it meant. Brick and mortar and the many ways of lifting them up and down have always interested me. I know the slow, measured tread of big, red shirted Pat, as he clumsily climbs the vertical ladder, the hod on his back, and can still hear from the bricklayers above the cry of "Mort!" sitting down between the unfloored beams of the several stories. I know, too, the more modern hoist, where a turn of the lever sends both brick and mortar flying skyward to the scaffolding overhead. But a girl of 16 and a gray haired woman of 60 were new types of brick and mortar carriers to me, and not in one place alone, but wherever a building is in course of construction.

Narrow platforms instead of ladders are made for them, running zigzag up the outside scaffolding. The mortar (all mixed by women) is dumped into a tub, a pole is thrust through the handles, swung over the shoulders of two women, and the weary climbing to the top begins. I saw one dark eyed, bare footed girl—she was pale and thin enough—clothed only in a skirt and chemise, rest the tub for a moment at the first landing and press her hand to her side as if in great pain, the older one waiting for her patiently.

With all its beauty, dash and enthusiasm it must be a curious civilization which tolerates and makes possible a sight like this. It made my blood run cold and hot. It was as if one had plowed with a fawn.

But this custom, hideous as it is, cannot, I think, be counted for many more years against these people. Their progress in social order is too marked, let us hope, to permit of a long continuance of this degradation.—F. Hopkinson Smith in Harper's Magazine.

Lace Trimmings.

Just now it is the minor accessories of dress that render the simple lawn and muslin gowns so attractive. Lace trimmings, with all their dainty and fascinating subtleties, are again triumphant. There are wonderful possibilities in these soft, beautiful decorations. This year there have been brought out some new and beautiful designs in fancy laces, and these have found countless admirers and purchasers, but great favor has also been shown to the long popular valenciennes patterns in edgings, insertions, flounces and all over designs. It is one of the few laces that are worn as appropriately by the mother as her little child or that can be used to frill the cap of an infant or of its grandmother.

Very charming dresses have this season been made of white organdie or swiss muslin without lining, but worn over a silk slip, either high or low in the neck. Thus made they have a more airy and diaphanous effect than muslins seamed in with the linings. The transparent dresses are trimmed with frills of the dress goods, edged with valenciennes lace, with narrow insertions to match set in above the hem of the ruffle. The top part of the waist is trimmed with tucks and lace insertions, alternating with wide flounces forming bretellelike trimmings on each shoulder, and a number now worn at a noted summer resort are fastened at the back, the skirts decorated with lace ruffles from belt to skirt hem.—New York Post.

Thin Gowns.

In pale yellow dotted muslin a charming gown was made with ruffles, each edged with narrow valenciennes lace and put on to overlap one another from the waist to the hem. The waist was made tight fitting in the back, but in the front was loose and like a blouse and trimmed with narrow ruffles edged with lace. At the top of the sleeve was a puff, but the lower part was shirred in clusters of infinitesimal tucks and bands of valenciennes insertion. A broad pink moire sash and a collar of pink moire covered with yellow lace gave a note of color that was exceedingly good against the yellow. The linings were of pink silk.

It is a well recognized fact that all the wash materials now, as well as the heavier fabrics, look best when the skirt is separate from the lining and just a little wider. Muslins and gauzes so soon lose their stiffness and freshness that it is best to slip a piece of feather bone through the hem or binding, as the skirt will then have all the flare that can be desired, and yet will not be disfigured by being too stiff and cumbersome.

A pale pink silk mull with an embroidered dot has been made over silk. The skirt has five flounces edged with narrow valenciennes lace. The waist has strips of the lace sewed horizontally, and over the top of the sleeves are four or five ruffles edged with narrow lace. A black moire collar and sash with a big full ruche of pink at the back of the neck relieve the plain color.

Black lace on light muslin gowns is a particularly effective trimming. A mauve muslin made up over yellow has ruffles on the skirt, each edged with black lace. The waist is almost covered with bands of black lace, while belt and collar are of yellow moire velvet. Mauve and yellow are always a good combination, and the black lace seems to heighten the effect most artistically.—Harper's Bazar.

Women as Veterinarians.

This year a young woman will be graduated from the Veterinary school in Alfort, France. Germany and Russia boast of women veterinarians, but in the United States there is not one who is entitled to write herself D. V. S. Women have applied to the various veterinary schools in the United States, most of them saying that they wished to make a special study of the diseases of cats and dogs. Some have taken preparatory courses at the school connected with Cornell university, but none has matriculated anywhere with the intention of entering the profession except Miss Jennie Revert, who attended the New York Veterinary college during two sessions.

Miss Revert is the owner of Robin-dale farm, Glen Head, N. Y., where she raises blooded horses and fine bulldogs. She hopes to finish her course and take her degree. She speaks appreciatively of the kindness, consideration and good fellowship which she has met with from professors and students. Miss Revert treats the horses and dogs on her own farm, and the horses are always shod under her own personal supervision.

Some of the wives of prominent veterinarians, who are not college graduates, have a wide practical experience and are well read on the subject of veterinary medicine, among them Mrs. Gill, the wife of the dean of the New York Veterinary college.

There are even now a number of women who can pick up a pony's foot and take a stone out of it—Miss Kitty Wilkins of Bruneau Valley, Ida., who raises horses; Mrs. Samuel Caton, who managed her husband's stock farm while he was in Europe, and Mrs. Power O'Donoghue, the famous Irish horsewoman, who broke her own colts and trained them and managed her own stud. There must be others who are able to enter the veterinary profession, a field of work for women as yet unexplored.—Woman's Journal.

Passing of the Sailor.

What is to be the future of the feminine sailor hat? asks a writer in the New York Press. Fashion tolerates sameness in dress among women of all conditions only a brief time. I do not suppose that there is a woman under 100 years of age in the city of New York who is without a sailor hat. Some women have several. Mondaines pay $5 each for theirs, while less extravagant persons are content with a sailor bought with a quarter. Two dollars is an average price, but I saw this sign in a wholesale milliner's window last week, "These sailor hats 76 cents a dozen." They were common things, of course, and not accurate in shape, but they were sailors. And I predict that such a condition portends a great change in headgear. Not before next summer probably, but by that time. Dame Fashion has too much individuality to bear a blow like this. "Seventy-six cents a dozen." True, a $5 sailor is superior to one at 61-3 cents, but a mondaine must not dress so that her costume, even in name, can be imitated by the masses. What are the fashionables to wear in the summer of 1898?

The candidate before the next general assembly of Kentucky for the place of state librarian will be Miss Nance Lee Neal of Lawrenceburg, Ky. Miss Neal is the 26-year-old daughter of the Hon. William Neal. She was educated at Hamilton college, Lexington, and at Belmont, Nashville.

Mrs. Oliphant was buried in Eton cemetery almost under the shadow of Windsor castle. Queen Victoria sent a wreath of flowers with the inscription, "A mark of admiration and respect from Victoria, R. I." The queen is a great admirer of Mrs. Oliphant's writings.

Instead of using the exhortation of the apostle, "Help those women," it should be, with their knack nowadays of making everything go, "Get those women to help you."—Boston Transcript.

WOMAN'S SOPRANO VOICE.

Why She Can Reach Much Higher Tones Than Is Possible for Man.

The scientist who discovered in the human larynx the anatomical reason why woman has a soprano voice and a man a bass one was a woman, Mrs. Emma Seiler, says the Philadelphia Times. She was a German, born in Wurtzburg. Left a widow with two children to support, she resolved to become a teacher of singing, but suddenly lost her voice. Then she determined to find out why; also to discover the correct method of singing, so that others might not lose their voices. For this purpose she studied anatomy. She dissected larynx after larynx, and spent years in her search trying to find for one thing why women's head tones could reach high C while men had no soprano tones. At length her search was rewarded. She discovered under the microscope one day two small, wedge-shaped cartilages whose action produces the highest tones of the human voice. She made her discovery public. It excited great attention among scientists. Her own brother, a physician, praised the treatise in the highest terms till he found his own sister had written it. Then he dashed it down, saying in a rage that she would be better attending to her housework. Mme. Seiler's portrait, a marble relief, is in possession of the American Philosophical society of Philadelphia, of which she was a member. She wrote, among other books, "The Voice in Singing" and "The Voice in Speaking."

Making the Most of Life.

To make every day count, one must have faith in the every-day possibilities of life. One of the reasons for the long torpid seasons which afflict so many lives is the prevalence of the idea that the supply of active life dealt out to each man is too small to cover the allotted period, and that, therefore, one must be content merely to breathe a good part of the time. To many a man life is faithfully represented by the old-fashioned corn-mill on the little mountain stream, with a wheel so large and a water supply so small that, after grinding a few hours, it must be shut down for an indefinite period to wait for more power. Nothing could be farther from the Scriptural idea. If we would do our best every day, it is not necessary for us to believe that one day may be as fruitful as another; but we ought to believe that in the days which have been allotted to us there are no blanks.—Sunday School Times.

Why He Paid.

"I tell you, sir, we are slaves to our landlords."
"Yes?"
"Yes, indeed. It's an outrage that we should have to pay rent."
"It's a good deal of bother at times."
"Then why do you do it?"
"I'm too lazy to move."—Chicago Post.

Good Printing...

Is like good painting—it demands and obtains a second glance. The second glance leads to thought about and knowledge of the thing portrayed, and then on to the artist or advertiser.

The kind of printing as well as the kind of painting that it pays to do and to have done is that which obtains this "second glance." Plenty of the other kind!

We are PRINTERS. Our work obtains glances of admiration, and thus leads on to the end desired. We don't do the "other kind." Put our job room to the test.

KEEPING WARM.

"It may seem a far-fetched caution to tell my patients to be sure and keep warm when the thermometer is ranging around in the seventies and eighties, but that is just what I find it needful to do," said one of the most successful practitioners of the present day.

"And just here I want to say that hot-water bags and hot-water cans, if kept handy by, and used whenever there was any reasonable excuse for it, would save many a sick spell and more doctors' bills than those who never use hot water can imagine. I have a patient who is and has for many years been almost an invalid. Only the most painstaking care has kept her on her feet. She is subject to neuralgias and chills and a low state of vitality generally, and finds it impossible to keep warm in a quite comfortable temperature. Some years ago she had several cans made for holding hot water. They held about one gallon each, and had screw taps to close them. They were filled with hot water and kept at her feet at night or in her easy chair during the day. Whenever she has one of the chilly spells from which she suffers so much, she wraps herself up warmly, places one can at her feet and another at her side or back and curls herself up for a cozy nap. In almost every instance she awakens up refreshed and bright, and able to go on with whatever she has in hand. Before she adopted the hot-water theory she used to try in vain to get sleep or rest. She tossed and writhed and ached with weariness and exhaustion. Now the cheering warmth rests and restores her, and almost immediately she falls into a sound and refreshing sleep, from which she awakens really benefited in mind and body. The heat draws the blood from the brain, equalizes the circulation and increases the vitality.

"It is one of the most difficult things imaginable to make people understand the value of heat in almost all minor disorders. Whenever the system becomes what is popularly spoken of as 'run down,' there is a feeling of chilliness, which is not only exceedingly uncomfortable, but may be the forerunner of illness. If the temperature can be kept up to the normal one may assist nature to shake off disease. We are very far from knowing just what the effect of medicine is on the human system. We know that it helps to remove obstructions and restores lost conditions, but precisely how it does this is not yet given to us to comprehend.

"There are certain things that we know will produce certain results, and many of these are exceedingly simple, and within the reach of every one. To keep the feet dry and warm, the body protected from chills, and the digestive organs moderately well supplied with nourishing food is to go a long way on the road of good health. It is not generally understood that a hot-water bag applied to the stomach is a better aid to digestion than all the dinner pills and powders ever compounded and put upon the market. It seems quite as little known that a glass of cold water at the end of a meal has been the first cause of more dyspepsia than doctors have ever cured. A little hot drink at meals, and a great deal of hot water in bags and cans would save untold suffering, and keep many a person in the enjoyment of excellent health."

Teddie's Advice.

The Blakes have a summer home in Willoughby, to which they have just returned, after a residence of six months in the city. One of the first callers after the family had got settled was the minister. While the good man was inquiring after the health of each member of the family, expressing his pleasure at their return and explaining how the affairs of the church were going, little Teddie, who celebrated his third birthday, and who, during their stay in the city, must have met somebody who was addicted to the use of slang, stood open-mouthed and apparently drinking in every word that was said. Having finished a general review of affairs concerning his church the minister started to tell about a book that he had just finished, when Teddie suddenly interrupted him by gravely saying:

"Oh, go hire a hall!"

It is understood that even now the worthy minister is sometimes possessed of troublesome doubts concerning the Blakes.—Cleveland Leader.

Wanted to Be Secure.

Bookkeeper—What's all this fuss about, anyway? Do you suppose the old man suspects me of any crooked work? Chief Clerk—Oh, no. He isn't to blame for it. Count Skeeks has made arrangements to marry Miss Araminta and is having experts to go through the books to see that there have been no misrepresentations regarding her father's wealth. That's all.—Cleveland Leader.

A Grocery Order.

The following is a bona fide story of a letter received by a Western grocer not long ago:

"Dere sir please send me 4 pounds of cofe and some te. My wife had a boy last night also 10 pounds of cheese and a rat trap, he weighed 7½ pounds and a hatchet and nails. Respt
"JACK SMITH."

A Translation.

"What do you suppose Nagle meant by the expression 'on dit' in connection with the report that Windaplit Adolphus Wier's tragedy company was coming to town?" "He probably meant on foot."—Philadelphia North American.

Each Day Finds Us Better Acquainted

With the buyers of Janesville and Rock County. We find it an easy matter to make friends as each purchaser is loud in praise of the new store, and his friends become our friends. Our object at all times is to satisfy people, make them feel at home, and, above all, to deal with them fairly. That is what brings them back again.

Competitors Knocked In the Shade . . .

By our prices. No stock in the city so complete. Our new goods are coming by the carload every day.
